

GOOD COMMUNICATION ON THE BUILDING SITE CAN.....

..... save time and money and reduce defects.

Seven tips for good communication

- Ask your supervisor, or site agent, if you are unsure about a detail.
- Try out difficult details on a mock-up before you build it for real.
- Get hold of product literature if a material or product is new to you.
- Make sure that you are working to the right drawing.
- Think about laminated drawings for use on site and in bad weather.
- Have a word with other trades to help all your work get along better.
- If in doubt ask!
